UC SANTA BARBARA

November 5, 2008 Andrea Estrada

UCSB Historian Explores How Comanche Empire Shaped United States History

During the high tide of imperial struggles in North America in the 18th and 19th centuries, an indigenous empire built by the Comanche Indians rose to dominate the fiercely contested lands of the American Southwest, the southern Great Plains, and northern Mexico.

In a talk titled "The Imperial Comanches: How the Rise and Fall of an Indigenous Empire Shaped the Course of American History," UCSB historian Pekka Hämäläinen will examine how this powerful empire eclipsed its various European rivals in military prowess, political prestige, economic power, commercial reach, and cultural influence.

Sponsored by the UCSB History Associates, Hämäläinen's talk will take place on Sunday, November 16, at 2 p.m. at the Santa Barbara Mission Archive-Library Conference Room, 2201 Laguna St. in Santa Barbara. A reception follows the talk, which is co-sponsored by the Santa Barbara Mission Archive-Library.

The cost is $10 for UCSB History Associates and Santa Barbara Mission Archive-Library members, and $15 for all others. Advance registration is recommended, and can be arranged by calling the UCSB Office of Community Relations at (805) 893-4388. Hämäläinen, an associate professor of history, is the author of "The Comanche Empire," which uncovers the lost story of the Comanches. His discussion about Comanche history will challenge the concept of indigenous peoples as victims of European expansion and offer a new model for the history of colonial expansion, colonial frontiers, and the Native-European relations in North America and elsewhere.

For more information, visit www.ia.ucsb.edu/comrel/events.shtml

Related LinksCommunity Relations

About UC Santa Barbara

The University of California, Santa Barbara is a leading research institution that also provides a comprehensive liberal arts learning experience. Our academic community of faculty, students, and staff is characterized by a culture of interdisciplinary collaboration that is responsive to the needs of our multicultural and global society. All of this takes place within a living and learning environment like no other, as we draw inspiration from the beauty and resources of our extraordinary location at the edge of the Pacific Ocean.